A Lesson From "The Clansman"

Thursday evening, we witnessed "The Clansman" at the New While we found the drama full to the brim of sentiment that engenders race hate in the hearts of uncultured and fire eating elements of both races, yet, we did not see al! that we anticipated. As we observed the effect the production had on its audience, which was 95 or 98 per cent white, we could see and fear danger from the radicals on both sides.

"The Clausman" may represent the feelings and sentiment of a large element of the white race but it certainly misrepresents the ber 40; Progress number 48; cultured Negro of today in any section of our land, and, especially in It presents a weak argument, when it features the intelligent, industrious, aggressive, manly, independent and New Negro as having an unquenchable longing to join himselt in marriage to his white contemporary. Demagogues, white and black may flaunt the banner of Social Equality before the thoughtless in both races, for the purpose of using them for political or other service. Many of both races may follow this delusion either to oppose its But the sensible, deau realization or to enjoy its imagined bliss. brave and conscientiously patriotic will conisider it at its face value which is practically a myth.

Social equality is not a creature of legislation. from and by affinities of mutual attraction from the hearts of individuals concerned. Hence, so long as race antipathy exists between the Negro and the American white man, social equality and social intermingling is an utter impossibility. Kingdoms and em pires have in the past stipulated marriages. Republics never have and never will. The above propositions are philosophic truths well authenticated by common sense and historical facts.

Feople of sober judgement are not worrying themselves about propositions that are absolutely personal and individual in their "sphere of influence."

Negroes and the entire American people are being brought tace to face with conditions today as never before since the early Sixties. As a nation, America can not much longer administer her laws under a dual standard, one for white mer. and another for black men. And at the same time claim both as citizens under our expanding Negro-haters, demagogues, firebrands, cowards and the selfish bigots may misrepresent the Negro's motive in his contention for his political and God given rights but the day is not far distant when the facts will be clearly seen. The Negro's traducers have deluded the unthinking white man for a generation with the "social equality" bogey. They shout from house top, throughout the valleys and upon the plains that the Negro by seeking his political rights is also eager to sit at the white man's table, marry the white man's daughter and subvert the white man's gov Look at the argument presented! tions as they are! They either have very little confidence in their valor or believe the American people to be a vast aggregation of fools.

America's New Negro does not seek social or marital equality with the whites. He does and will continue to contend for his rights under the constitution. He brands as a malicious slander any allegations from any source by any body that he is anxious, even remotely, to merge his identity with any race. other races to refrain from emptying their illegitimate blood into
