At Phenix High School: 'The New <span ... New Journal and Guide (1916-2003); Feb 25, 1961; ProQuest Historical Newspapers: Norfolk Journal and Guide pg. A4

At Phenix High School

'The New Negro' Depicted By Government Classes

The government classes of amples of self - expression. George P. Phenix high school in celebration of Negro His-tory Weck presented a play entitled "The New Negro." 175 years This play depicted the history of the Negro race in a new and different phase — the develop-ments gone through by the ment and achievement of racial integration in many areas of the South. It was divided into four scenes, and was nar-rated by Simon Gaskill.

The first scene, "The Spark Ignited," brought out the fact that the Negro of today is passive, yet demanding. It was demonstrated by college youth attempting to eat at segregated lunch counters.

THE SECOND cene, "Seeking Status." illustrated the efforts of the college youth to gain equal rights. By having college picketers on one side of the street and Kiu Klux Klan picketers on the otner, they demonstrated that the "New Negro" is unafraid and uninhibited by traditional ties.

Scene three, "Self Assertion," with the aid of a speech choir brought out the fact that the "New Negro" is vocal and is no longer content to be a "yes sir" or "no sir" man. Quotes from Martin Luther King, Dr. Ralph Bunche, and Roy Wilkins were cited as ex-

The fourth scene was entitled "The Old Order Changeth." 175 year - old campus of the two Negro students, Charlavne Hunter and Hamilton Holmes when they sought admission to this institution.

UNDER THE guidance of Mrs. E. C. Jordan, government instructor, this play was written and directed by four senior high school students: Elsie Bowman, Marcia Parks, Shirley Thomas, and Mona Wilson. Teresa Keene pre-sented a creative dance demonstrating the breaking of the "shackles of slavery."

The art work was done by Clarence Pearson and Yyonne Brown. Under the direction of student director, Henry Wilson, and his assistant, Ann Byrd, the choir rendered many elections through out the program.

The theme song was entitled "Great Day." Soloists in the choir were Marvin Patterson and John Wallace. Other members of the choir were: Raymond Anthony, Jacqueline Baker, Herbert Byrd, Joy c e Chavers, Ernestine Flowers, Leonard Harper, Hugh Harrell, Dallas Hpson, Marjorie Hopson, Gwendolyn Hugh I e y, Florence Jones, Charlotte McRae, William Lee, David Marshburn, Charlotte Mc-Rae, Gordon Miller, Edward Morse, Andrew Perkins, Le-Roy Pierce, Rnald Pride, Milton Reid, Evelyn Small, Jean Spratley, David Sturd ivant, Parthenia Tyson, Celes-tine Whitfield, Milton W11liams, and Sylvia Winston.

PARTICIPANTS in the play were: Gloria Anthony, Marcia Baker, Percy Banks, Bet-ty Brown, Elaine Brown, San-Vernard Caples, Herman Carter, Ann Chavers, Clarence

Curry, Rosilyn Jackson, Sandra Bown, Marian Burwell, Gertrude Jiggetts, James Jordan, Vincent Middleton, Clarence Pearson, Andrew Perkins, Ralph Simpson, Edna Smith, Janet Smith, Andrew Sparks, Horace Thompson, Ruth Waddell, ernice Wil-liams, Wilma Wright.

This play was first presented for the H. T. A. at the Phenix auditorium en Feb. 2. Under the auspices of the HTA, it was presented for the Portsmouth Teachers Association at I. C. Norcum high school, Portsmouth, on Feb. 9. "The New Negro" .made its third appearance on Feb. 16, when it was presented for the entire student body of the George P. Phenix high school. Feb. 22,, it will be given for the pupils and faculty of R. R. Moton school.

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.