

Californians Are Saying

"There is a brand new Negro in the South, with a new sense of dignity and destiny." — Rev. Martin Luther King, Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott leader, at NAACP convention in S.F.

"I was always an actor in the boxin' game, and since I quit the ring I learnt a lotta wolds. I ain't no dummy no more." — Tony Galento, prizefighter turned actor, Hollywood.

"We need a better business bureau for politics." — Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest, U.S. treasurer, in Calif.

"Our elementary and high schools suffer from pernicious softening of the curriculum." — Dr. Arnold O. Beckman, pres., L.A. C of C.

"I think I had better retire." — Charlie Barnet, Hollywood orchestra leader, in court for annulment of marriage by his ninth wife.

"There aren't any back-kitchen inventors any more. Today's highly-trained technician is a new kind of animal." — R. G. Follis, Standard Oil of Calif. Bd. Chr., S.F.

"What on earth would we do without newspapers? Newspapers get more people out of bed in the morning than all the factory whistles ever blown." — Goodwin J. Knight.

"I deem entirely invalid the vision of a shortage of agricultural land. With present agricultural lands we can feed a U.S. population of 350,000,000 people." — Dr. Karl Brandt, agricultural economics prof., Stanford.
