Looking at the World From a Womans Point of View

Burroughs, Nannie New Journal and Guide (1916-); Nov 23, 1929; ProQuest pg. 7

Station WMAL broadcasts a program of music. In his introductory of a planist who was going to play a Negro jazz number the announcer said that "the next selection will show the accass and spirit of the old and the new Negro."—the spirit of the plantation darkey and the Harlem high-brow—but no matter what he is, the Negro is still a Negro." What on earth did that man mean? "THE NEGRO IS STILL A NEGRO. Of course, he is, and so is the Anglo-Saxon, the Indian, the Chinese. The Negro would be a monstrosity if he were born a Negro and turard Chinese or Anglo-Saxon, He can't be anything else, physically, because he is born of flesh and "that which is born of flesh and "that which is born of flesh is flesh"—remains the same kind of flesh. But men do not win in this world on flesh. Flesh is incidental—spirit is all.

A man hasn't done anything for himself by simply coming into the worldwhite and the only way he can prove his superiority is by becoming something mentally, morally, and spiritually.

The Anglo-Saxon is the only race on earth that keeps up complaint against men's color and penalizes them for being what God made them. The Anglo-Saxon is the only race that is rying to make white, and not right the pasport into the great world of unlimited opportunity. Men want opportunity, they don't give a straw about their color because after all about their color because after all

The inference in the statement "no matter what he is, the Negro is, still a Negro, is that it matters not how richly endued, how well educated, cultured, and useful to human society the Negro may become, he is still inferior to the Anglo-Saxon because he didn't. "choose" to be born white, he infers that the whits horse is suboffor, a thinck horse, regardless of the fact that the black horse won the fact that the black horse won the fact that the black horse white makes even a white idde appearor to a black society.

sensible white person subscribes to it. No matter what our color is, we are all children of Ged. No children of the same Father are inately superior. Since we are all children of God, then all races are heirs of God and no one race is going to hog the the earth and get away with it.

The radio is the most sacred discovery man has ever made because it is the most mysterious and far-raching, and it should not be prostituted to the ungody business of teaching race inferiority or spreading mischievous propaganda that will generate contempt or antagonism between the

Then, from a business viewpoint, Negroes are spending several million doilars a year for radios and other electries. The radio people who are enjoying the generous patronage of the Negro, should observe the ordinary rules of business ethics. One of these general rules is "Never insult your customers." The radio corporations and the Federal Council of Churches of Christ have big opportunities for teaching, without even preaching, goodwill by just doing, the natural and fair thing once and a while. We are not asking that the Negros who have messages of human or general interest in sermon or speech be given the cpportunity to deliver them as hundreds of causes are given such chances.
Negroes are funny. On the first

Tuesday in November in New York City Paul Robson sang for them in Carnegle Hall, and Hubert Delany ran for them in Harlem. They did not support either of them with full appreciation of the far-reaching and deep significance of these two events. White peo-(Continued on Page 11)

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.

From A Woman's Point of View

(Continued from Page 7) ple jammed the theatre to welcome

Robeson home after his two years of triumph in the concert halls of Europe. Robeson, proud and appreciative the music of his own race gave t audience a rich program of "ALL NEGRO MUSIC"—Negro composers, Negro pi-anist and a Negro singer—something new under the sun. Robeson scored. The great audience encored him again and again. Less than three hundred negroes, out of the population of over one hundred fifty thousand, in New York City, came to welcome the man who is making a place for the race among the stars. Thank God! Color does not count in art. That audience applauded talent and created a warm atmosphere in which our great baritone sang for his race out of the fullness of his heart.

When a member of the race is out there carrying on gloriously, let's go and cheer him.

A Foolish Complaint

To cap the climax a Negro woman of supposed culture and education said as the the concert closed. "It was a fine program, but I am sorry he sang ALL NEGRO MUSIC. He should have ALL NEGRO MUSIC. He should many some classic music for an audience like this." He did sing classic music and several numbers possessed unsurpassed soul quality. It was muunsurpassed soul quality. It was music written by Burleigh, Brown, Boatner and Cook. The critic is a woman sic witten of the critic is a women ner and Cook. The critic is a women who has her master's degree from a great university, but she hasn't sense enough to sense the deeper significance of that program and the presence of that audience. It meant appreciation for Negro production—the very thing that the Negro woman lacks. To her that the Negro woman lacks. To her a program of all Negro music is inferior and unfit for a cultured audience. Poor thing! Negroes like that are really funny. Something has gone to their head.

Up in Harlem on this same day, Hubert Delany ran for Congress, Hubert Delany is capable. Fifteen thousand six hundred Negroes an dabout thir-teen thousand white voted for him. The twenty-three thousand Negroes who registered could have voted for him. Had they voted for their race candidate New York Negroes would have made a most impressive showing. It helps the race to make a most impressive showing in politics. It helps any group. Whether we lose or win, it helps the race when it makes the showing, politically, Fear United Forces Delany would not have won had all the Negroes in the twenty-first congressional district voted for him, but if the Negroes in that district present a solid front they can get more respect and more consideration from those who win. Politicians are really afraid of a solid front. If Negroes cannot win a solid front. If Negroes cannot win office for Negro candidates, they can win respect for their whole group by solidarity of action. Politicians respect and fear numbers when those num-bers act together. Politicians use di-vided forces; they fear united forces. Then, too, Negroes in Harlem must remember that they are voting to sus-tain one of the greatest principles in tain one of the greatest principles in Democratic government-Representa tion. Win or lose, vote for that fine principle every time. Geographically, the twenty-first congressional district has a white head and a black body. Regardless of the shape of Harlem District—the upper part white, and the lower part black—Negroes in New York are entitled to one representative in the United States Congress. To get that representative Negroes must put down their pettiness and play the game together. There are enough fair-minded whites in Hariem, who make their ity-ing off of Negroes up there, to help them win on the fine principle of fair representation. Together the Negroes representation. Together the Nagroes of Harlem can win; divided they will continue to lose.

Delany is still running!