"The New Negro" was the subject of an address by Glenn Carrington, Howard University graduate and member of a student committee investigating conditions in Russia, delivered Friday evening before the International Student Organization at Hunter College.

The older sentimentality of the Negro, according to Mr. Carrington, is giving away to a newer scientific thought in the fields of economics, education and literature. Economically, he asserted, the Negro now considers himself not a separate unit but as one of a vast democracy of workers.

In literature, the youthful lecturer declared, that the Negro is fast departing from his old emotional tendencies. No longer is he a head-bowed individual with tears in his eyes, but a true man with courage, fearlessly facing life. To illustrate these changes from the old the "New Negro," Mr. Carrington read several poems of modern Negro writers.

Health Week Marked by Organizations of City

The Community League of the Columbus Hill Center, 224 West Sixty-third street, in connection with its celebration of "Negro Health Week" held a mass meeting at the Center on Friday evening.

The principal speakers were Dr. Alonzo DeG. Smith; R. G. Costello, supervisor of inspectors of the Tenement House Department; W. F. Johnson, white, director of humanitarian work of the Children's Aid Society; and Abraham Dodfield, white, executive director of the Lavanburg Homes. A short musical program followed the addresses and was given by the Columbus Hill orchestra under the direction of Percy Punter.

The West 137th street branch of the Young Woman's Christian Association also marked its observance of Health Week by a talk on health by Dr. Robert Wilkinson on Sunday afternoon at the branch. Dr. Wilkinson spoke on the subject, "Health for Efficient Living."

College Girls Get Views Of Harlem's Social Work

Sixty college girls here for their spring vacations paid Harlem a visit Thursday in order to get a first-hand picture of social work and Negro life of the community.

York Urban League and the Association of Volunteers in Social Service.

The tour was arranged by the New York Urban League and the Association of Volunteers in Social Service. Eleven colleges were represented, including Americans from all over the nation and foreign exchange students.

After viewing St. Mark's M. E. Church, the Paul Laurence Dunbar Apartments, International Hospital and the Y. W. C. A., the group held a conference at the New York Urban League, 202 West 136th street. The meeting was presided over by Miss Alfreda Page and Mrs. Danforth Geer, Jr., of the Association of Volunteers. James H. Hubert, executive secretary of the league, spoke on the aspects of the race problem in America and outlined the approach to the situation by his organization.

ST. THOMAS PREPARES FOR 6,000 U. S. SAILORS

According to the United Press, merchants and other business men of St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, are completing plans for an extensive program of entertainment for the 6,000 or more officers and sailors of the United States fleet expected here within a few days.

Fancy diving, boat and swimming races for prizes donated by the merchants will help entertain the sailors.
